Bold denotes member of the Executive Board

Welcome to Santa Fe and the 43rd annual SCOLAS conference! The theme of this year's conference, looking at what the Post-American (?) World means for its traditional allies and hemispheric neighbors, reminds us how important the study that drives many of our careers is as the states of the region re-examine and re-assess their position in the world currently and through the lens of history. The global economic crisis that gripped us at the time that we began planning this conference is not yet over, though it may be easing in many states, but the question of what comes after still remains. Thus, we are delighted to see so many scholars from across the region who have elected to come to Santa Fe to consider what was, what is and what will be in hemisphere relations.

This sort of relevant and intimate conference, one that can respond to events of the day, across the many disciplines that it embraces, is one strength of the Southwest Council of Latin American Studies. SCOLAS' founding and heritage come from the 1960s, another time of turmoil and study of the hemispheric relations, by a dedicated group of scholars. Then as now, SCOLAS was an all-volunteer organization. Without the efforts of its members, it would not have come this far. As we look forward, we know that without continuing efforts from the members, it will not last into the future.

We appreciate everyone who has given of her or his time to help, who has served on the Executive Board, who has made the scholarships and the book and article awards successful, who has brought in new members, who has volunteered to chair a panel or to serve on a committee. Thank you! Now we ask, we challenge, everyone, old members and new, to consider where they could apply their considerable talents to share the work that running an international organization (that's what we are!) entails. Incoming President, Paul Hart (ph18@txstate.edu), and his Program Chair, Pauline Warren, will be without an Executive Director, which means that even more of the responsibility will fall to them. We have been without an editor of the Bulletin for almost a year now, and that has damaged our community as we've lost a valuable means of communication. Please, think about where you could help and then do it! This is too big a job for two people, and too valuable an organization to see fade away after four decades. There is much to look forward to in the study of the region, and we as an organization, have much to contribute.

Sincerely,

Janet Adamski
